

Intended Learning Outcomes. Department of Nutrition/Faculty of Pharmacy and Medical Sciences/2018-2019

Upon successful completion of the required courses, students are able to achieve the following learning outcomes

(A) Knowledge and Understanding
K (1)	Possess knowledge in general medical and nutrition, food science and technology and the Nutrition Care Process.
K (2)	Identify the applicability of the acquired knowledge in all nutrition and food-related fields.
K (3)	Seek information from nutritional evidence-based resources.
K (4)	Know and understand the principles of scientific research.
(B) Intellectual Skills
I (1)	Recognizing, applying and solving nutrition/food-related problem.
I (2)	Plan, conduct and report on an individual research project.
(C) General and Transferable Skills
T (1)	Prepare reports and make presentations.
T (2)	Good use of the internet and other electronic sources as means of communication and for solving nutrition problem.
T (3)	Realize, summarize and communicate information concerning food and nutrition.
(D) Professional and Practical Skills
P (1)	Ability to apply dietary assessment and evaluate dietary intake in formulating diets to meet specified requirements in health and disease.
P (2)	Develop and perform chemical, nutritional, microbiological and sensory laboratory tests to assess the quality and safety of foods.
P (3)	Ability to work as part of the health care team.