The political role of Israeli women 1948-2003

this study aims at presenting the political role of Jewish women. Despite the inconveniences suffered by Jewish women at the hands of the religiously oriented circles and fanatics who emphasized that the women’s work is restricted to her home and looking after her children in addition to the house chores and preparation of food and although the Zionist movement through its founder Herzl made of the women a commodity to be presented to creative men.